Stepping Stones is Highlands Community Services' clubhouse model of psychosocial rehabilitation. Stepping Stones provides adult group education to individuals who need help managing the symptoms of serious mental illness. Services include prevocational units that teach teamwork, along with specialized educational groups focusing on health and wellness, exercise, nutrition, independent living skills, and leisure skills. Community integration trips are also an important part of the education process. A team of trained staff work side by side with individuals to help them achieve treatment goals and to increase quality of life. Consumers often see the program as "family".
